A radio station has been constructed just outside the east border of Klaipeda. The towers are supported with props which extend about half way up the towers. Wires extend from the tops of the radio towers and are fastened on the ground in a circle around each tower. A horizontal wire extends from one radio tower to the other. A second radio station has been located in the fishing harbor at Klaipeda. There are six to eight towers, between which are hung wires. Both of these stations are manned by naval personnel.
